Foreword

In March 2021, the Victorian Gender Equality Act 2020 (The Act) came into effect. The Act promotes, encourages and facilitates the achievement of gender equality within Victorian communities and organisations. The Act introduces new responsibilities for defined entities to implement, monitor and report on progress towards achieving gender equality in their workplace.

South Gippsland Hospital as a defined entity understands its role in gender equality and welcomes these legislative obligations to address known issues within the sphere of gender equality.

Our 2021–2025 Gender Equality Action Plan represents a commitment to strengthen our existing workplace culture, where diversity and equality is respected and valued. We have worked, and will continue to work, with representatives from across the organisation to consider and make recommendations to the SGH Board, relating to gender equality.

We commenced this important journey when the 2021 People Matter Survey results were released, alongside our Gender Audit data, and acknowledge that there is a need for ongoing monitoring and review of the actions within the plan.

Some other steps that have already been taken include:

- consulting with SGH staff on matters relating to gender equality
- consulting with other Health Services, and
- inviting consultation and input from relevant Health Unions.

Throughout all our work an intersectional lens is applied, recognising that gender inequality is compounded by other forms of disadvantage or discrimination that may be experienced by particular groups or individuals, relating to Aboriginality, age, disability, ethnicity, gender identity, race, religion, sexual orientation and other attributes.

As we look forward we must address deficiencies in our ability to accurately identify staff diversity, as Historical data gathering methods provide insight regarding gaps and the level now required, to accurately report on the information to align with The Act. We will look for ways to improve access to intersectional data through implementation of the Action Plan.

SGH recognises that gender equality in the workplace has a flow on effect to our consumers and more broadly throughout the community we serve. By continuing to build a vibrant and inclusive workplace culture that values difference and diversity, we are investing in the wellbeing of our staff and the local community.

Data helping to Inform Actions –

Gender Equality Audit, People Matter Survey and Best Practice Clinical Learning Environment

SGH has a largely female workforce, resulting in potential for gender inequality, both in their experience of work, and the salary for performance of work. That said, wages are determined by industrial instruments such as several Enterprise Bargaining Agreements (EBA) and employees, regardless of gender, are paid based on the relevant classification within an EBA.

The People Matter Survey (PMS) is the Victorian public sector’s annual employee opinion survey, with SGH employees encouraged to participate and share their experiences of working within the organisation.

The results of the 2021 PMS indicate that there is a strong culture at SGH with 93% of staff indicating that gender is not a barrier to success, 92% of staff indicating that SGH supports employees with family or other caring responsibilities (regardless of gender), 92% of staff feel that work is allocated fairly (regardless of gender), and 86% of staff indicate there is a positive culture at SGH, in relation to employees who have family responsibilities.

Whilst the above indicators are very strong, others still need a focus despite being higher than other health services in our comparator group. SGH will need to find additional ways to ensure staff feel:

- there are adequate opportunities for them to develop skills and experience,
- they have an equal chance at promotion,
- that recruitment and promotion decisions are based on merit and
- that having family responsibilities is not a barrier to success.

The 2021 PMS results also identified strong performance in relation to avoiding compounding gender inequality by SGH demonstrating anti- discrimination. Almost all SGH staff (> n=60 of 67 who participated in the PMS or >88%) report that:

- they feel culturally safe at work
- their manager works effectively with people from diverse backgrounds,
- there is a positive culture at SGH in relation to employees from varied cultural backgrounds
- there is a positive culture at SGH in relation to employees of different age groups.

An audit of gender equality (June 2021) demonstrated a gender pay gap of 2.1% of the median total remuneration.

This is significantly lower than the National average for healthcare sector of 21.3%.

The Best Practice Clinical Learning Environment (BPCLE) Framework is a guide for health and human services organisations, in partnership with education providers, to coordinate and deliver high-quality training for learners. Whilst the BPCLE data does not relate to staff opinion, these indicators add to the evidence with regard to the positive culture of support, safety and wellbeing evident at SGH.

The 2021 BPCLE survey responses from learners placed at SGH indicate strong performance from professional entry learners (Nursing students) in the following areas:

- 100% (15 of 15) of learners were satisfied or very satisfied with respect to the welcome they receive
- 95% (18 of 19) of learners were satisfied or very satisfied with their feeling of safety
- 100% (19 of 19) of learners were satisfied or very satisfied with their sense of wellbeing

SGH must continue to provide leadership in the above areas, as well as strengthen efforts to support a culture that values and celebrates employees who identify as LGBTIQ+, and/or who are Aboriginal and / or Torres Strait Islander, and /or employees with disability through implementation of our diversity plan.

Of interest, the SGH Board outperforms in the space of gendered representation in comparison to the national average for Australian Not for Profit Boards (ANFP). Half of the Board is female in comparison to the ANFP average of 40%. Further, whilst SGH Board is led by a female chair, only 32% of ANFP counterparts have female chairs.

In 2021, SGH experienced no instances of sexual harassment in the workplace (both perceived and reported) which indicates healthy levels of sexual safety between employees in the workplace. This is an encouraging indicator of positive attitudes towards gender respect and equality in the workplace.

Action Plan Development

In developing our Gender Equality Action Plan, we have committed to the Victorian Gender Equality Principles –

'To live in a safe and equal society, with equal access to power, resources and opportunities'.

The case for change is obvious.

Implementation of a Gender Equality Action Plan aligns with the SGH vision to be the healthiest community in the state by:

- Reflecting the breadth of diversity in the community
- Ensuring non-binary, transgender or gender fluid consumers do not face any barriers to accessing clinical care and services
- Providing a safe and inclusive environment for staff, visitors and consumers
- Eliminating discrimination and intersectional disadvantage for staff, visitors and consumers
- Increasing employee engagement and job satisfaction through more inclusive systems, policies and protocols
- Attracting and retain high quality healthcare professionals who recognise and value difference
- Modelling inclusive practice as leaders in our own communities

“SGH is committed to providing employment, health care and all related business based on the principles of access, equity and respect. Staff are expected to provide excellence in care and a safe, welcoming and inclusive health service by respecting and appreciating what makes each individual different, including Aboriginality, age, gender identity, ethnicity, religion, disability, sexual orientation, education and national origin.”

Priorities

Understanding our Workforce

SGH encourages our staff to be proud and open about their identity in the workplace, by creating a safe space to share uniqueness. SGH will invite all staff to self-identify and celebrate their culturally and/or linguistically diverse background, Aboriginal/Torres Strait Island identification and status, or if they are gender diverse or a person living with a disability.

Developing the identity of the workforce will enable us to celebrate and benefit from our diversity, whilst identifying and removing remaining barriers to individual success, intersectional disadvantage and/or discrimination.

Flexibility for our Workforce

SGH recognises the importance of flexibility in the workplace to support gender equality and a positive workplace culture broadly.

Staff with health challenges or those with family or carer responsibilities can often experience disadvantage at work.

In 2021, SGH commenced a process to formalise flexible work arrangements for staff and managers.

Developing better ways of capturing flexible work requests and agreements has (and will) increase our capacity to anticipate and respond to increasing staff expectations for flexible work options.

Pay Equity in our Workforce

Understanding the complexities of the gender pay gap isn't easy considering the majority (92%) of staff identify as female.

To create strategies that will result in effective and sustainable progress towards equity in pay, requires in depth analysis of the internal and sector wide drivers of the gender pay gap.

External support will be enlisted to assist SGH to understand where there are pay inequities that need resolving.

Recruitment and Career Development Equity in our Workforce

The focus is on increasing access for employment, workplace participation, and outcomes for women to develop career opportunities by upskilling and progressing their preferred careers.

That said, there needs to be a broader focus outside of our clinical workforce, as this traditional approach results in employment disadvantage outside of this particular cohort.

Equitable recruitment practices help to eliminate unconscious bias and ensure merit-based candidate selection, increasing diversity in the workplace is paramount.

	Responsibility	Timeline	Success /Measure
Update recruitment policy and include gendered recruitment targets to increase diversity in the workplace	HR Manager	July 2022	Implementation and manager engagement

Sustaining an inclusive culture

SGH aims to maintain its fair and kind culture by reviewing processes and systems to strengthen trust within the workforce and empower staff to raise issues in a timely, appropriate and supportive way.

Staff at all levels are encouraged to maintain inclusive and respectful relationships to build truly sustainable workplace equality. We are aware that some staff have negative workplace experiences, such as discrimination and disadvantage, yet may not reported it. This needs to change.

Strategic Resource Plan

The Executive Team, through development and endorsement of this Action Plan, has made a firm commitment to implement it through appropriate and timely resourcing of action plan items.

Internal human resources will be allocated to deliver proposed actions.

SGH will look to partner with Gippsland Regional Health Services and would welcome further funding from the Gender Equality Commission, or other relevant agencies, as available, to additionally support this important work.

Implementing, Monitoring & Reporting

Actions contained within this plan will be implemented in accordance with the allocated timelines, and oversight by the Operational Management Team (OMT).

The OMT will review progress of the action plan on a quarterly basis. A dashboard report will be presented to the Board annually, in June, with a formal progress report to the Gender Equality Commission submitted by 31 October each year, commencing in 2023.
